

Attending Slot Conferences

Accreditation

IATA maintains an Online Accreditation System \(OAS\) identifying who is legally authorized to complete slot transactions on behalf of an airline or airport. This process is known as accreditation. Head delegates are in control of the accreditation of their delegation and are responsible for adding, removing and editing the details of their delegates online.

All participants in the slot allocation process must be accredited. As only accredited delegates will be allowed to hold meetings during the Conference, the accreditation status is printed on the delegate badges.

Airline Accreditation

The Head of Delegation (HOD) for an airline in the slot allocation process is known as the Head Airline Representative. The Head Airline Representative must be appointed by the Chief Executive Officer of the company by a duly signed Accreditation Form 1 (pdf) uploaded to OAS. This authorization allows the Head Airline Representative to bind its company in regards to any and all decisions taken within the specific scope of the slot allocation process. This applies to all airlines, IATA members and non-members alike.

Coordinator and Facilitator Accreditation

The Head of Delegation (HOD) for the coordination and facilitation of Level 2 and 3 airports in the slot allocation process is known as a Head Coordinator/Facilitator. The Head Coordinator/Facilitator must be appointed by the appropriate regulatory organization by a duly Accreditation Form 1 (pdf) uploaded to OAS. This authorization allows the Head Coordinator/Facilitator to bind its organization in regards to any and all decisions taken within the specific scope of the slot allocation process.

In the context of the Slot Conference, the Head Airline Representative and the Head Coordinator/Facilitator are referred to as the Head of Delegation (HOD). Accordingly, each company should keep their details up to date using the OAS.
