

IATA Aircraft Leasing Advisory Group (ALAG)

What is ALAG?

IATA's Aircraft Leasing Advisory Group (ALAG) was created to assist in all matters relating to aircraft leasing, make recommendations related thereto, and indicate how its recommendations may be implemented. Additionally, ALAG provides a neutral forum for airlines, leasing companies and others to come together and address industry issues related to the aircraft leasing process.

What does ALAG do?

The ALAG aims at developing cost-effective policies, standards, and recommendations relating to:

- Paperless documentation to support aircraft transfers
- Aircraft leasing lifecycle
- Delivery/redelivery conditions
- Methodology on maintenance reserves
- Aircraft parts replacement
- Back to birth record
- Co-operation and co-ordination of activities with other relevant entities, airline regional associations and other international bodies as necessary to achieve industry goals and objectives.

Why Join ALAG?

ALAG provides a forum for airlines, and other industry stakeholders (such as lessors, and service providers) to exchange and share knowledge, best practices and industry know-how, as well as networking in the aircraft leasing area.

How to Join ALAG?

Membership to the ALAG is open to Member Airlines, IATA Strategic Partners and any other specialists who are approved by the ALAG Steering Committee.
